

the body's time on that; that if individuals were opposed to the individual components of the MacBride Principles, and there was a lot of debate, that I was...that I would pull the motion. That did not happen. We did not divide it. There was little opposition to the issue. And I, for one, felt that there was no need to pull it. It was...it came before the body to a vote. And it was not a...an effort on my part to deceive Senator Haberman. That...that clearly is not the way I operate and if he feels that way, for that, I apologize, but it was not my intent and the amendment is adopted now. It is not the kind of provision that has been before this body before. I really do not think that there needs to be opposition to it. It...it is not the onerous sanctions that have been here before in the past. It is clearly a public policy statement in terms of investment, for those types of companies that deal with affirmative action in Northern Ireland and I believe that's where the...the opposition is based, not on the...the issue of South Africa, although I do respect his freedom to address that issue. With that, again I rise to oppose the bracket motion.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Thank you, Senator Hall. Senator Haberman.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Madam President, members of the body, Senator Chambers, I have the facts here in front of me, and you don't. This is in the World-Herald, March 27. The country's first all-race elections April 26 to the 28th. Whites make up 12 percent of South Africa's 40 million people. Buthelezi says I want free voting. These are facts. These aren't just getting up and screaming, hollering and...and saying things that aren't true, Senator Chambers. I have here another one, April 6. White South Africans hoarding supplies. And it goes on and tell how the white people are scared to death. Now, if that isn't war, if that isn't going to turn into killing, then I'm wrong, and I'll admit that I'm wrong. I just...I just don't understand...oh...if...if Senator Pappas being a lobbyist bothers you so much, or doesn't bother you, why do you bring it up all the time? This is the third time I've heard this, so why bring it up all the time? Sure, he's a lobbyist. If you were up against Senator Hall and Senator Ernie Chambers, wouldn't you holler for help? Well, I hollered for help and I got help. I hope the help comes through. So it doesn't bother me that Senator Pappas is hired. We hired a lobbyist last time, Senator Chambers, when Senator Hartnett has this ball...has this bill. We hired a lobbyist for that, so I don't think there's anything wrong with hiring a lobbyist if you need help and I need help,
