SENATOR HABERMAN: ...what do you feel about this? And, you say yes or no, don't you?

SENATOR ROBINSON: There's a lot of ramifications to it.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Well, tell me what are some of the ramifications.

SENATOR ROBINSON: Well...what time...what period of time in history are you talking about?

SENATOR HABERMAN: Now.

SENATOR ROBINSON: Well, I don't know. I'm not...I'm not up-to-date on now. Now, years ago I was. I'm a...I'm older.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Tell me about years ago.

SENATOR ROBINSON: Well, probably yes, then, years ago.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Probably yes, but if things have deteriorated and gotten worse?

SENATOR ROBINSON: Well, I think they're doing pretty good over there now.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Where? In South Africa?

SENATOR ROBINSON: Well, I thought you were talking about Israel.

SENATOR HABERMAN: No. We're talking about South Africa.

SENATOR ROBINSON: Oh. I...you had me confused.

SENATOR HABERMAN: I'm trying to confuse you, Senator Robinson.

SENATOR ROBINSON: I saw the Zulus coming down Main Street of Johannesburg the other night on T.V.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Did they look mean?

SENATOR ROBINSON: I'm glad I wasn't on the main street of Johannesburg.
