

it were Fort Robinson, I would feel...

SENATOR CROSBY: Time.

SENATOR BOHLKE: ...the same way. Thank you.

SENATOR CROSBY: Thank you. Senator Ashford.

SENATOR ASHFORD: How many other speakers are there?

SENATOR CROSBY: After you, there are six.

SENATOR ASHFORD: Okay, I'm just going to waive off at this time.

SENATOR CROSBY: Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Madam President and members of the Legislature, I'd just...Senator Pirsch, before you get away, I want to ask you a question because you made a statement that poses a riddle to me. You said, in your district, people voted for this tax and not all of them live in the city. Did I understand you correctly?

SENATOR PIRSCH: The ones who voted in the city election, the majority of them did, by the precinct numbers, vote for it. Then I also ask this on my questionnaire, my newsletter questionnaire,...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Oh, but the thing I...

SENATOR PIRSCH: ...and the questionnaire goes to those outside of the city,...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Got you.

SENATOR PIRSCH: ...and that also was a majority.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay, I understand now what you were meaning, because I was going to say if there are people outside of the city who voted in the city election, then they would have been doing something that was not quite what it should have been doing, what should not have been done. But, members of the Legislature, Senator Pirsch raised another point that has often been raised, and they phrase the question like this, how can the
