

noted. I told Senator Kristensen about a matter, but it was before Final Reading, but I think the bill was on Final Reading, and it would have had an impact on the appellate procedure that he had established in a comprehensive bill. It was an item that slipped past him because it was in a bill that had not caught his attention, but one that had caught mine and on which I had done considerable work. So maybe the best thing for me to do is to take a session and just let all these bad bills go through, or deal with them on Final Reading and just say, I know it's on Final Reading, you don't want to deal with it, but I just want to call your attention to the fact that here is a problem. And then if people are very prideful they'll say, well despite that, we'll let the court handle it. Think about some of the amendments that have been offered and the changes that have been wrought. Maybe I do take more pride, Senator Kristensen, in how the system operates, and the fact that I don't want to be associated with something which is very slipshod, or sloppy, or inadvertent, not every problem in a bill is the result of sloppiness or being slipshod. There are inadvertent mistakes. Well, every mistake, you could say, is inadvertent. But sometimes there are mistakes which are, in quotation marks, "mistakes". I'm talking now about those which occur due to maybe inattention, misunderstanding, a misprint or something of that kind. I need the time, I make use of the time. Maybe it's a way to stop me from having the time. But if it is presented it will go to the public and they'll vote it up or down. However they vote, we're going to be bound by that. A lot of what we do in the Legislature should not be submitted...

PRESIDENT ROBAK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...as it would be if we were conducting a popularity contest or a poll. We get irritated, we get impatient and we do something which is going to bind us forever when we no longer are irritated, when we no longer are impatient and the very thing we were thinking about that would prevent one thing turns around and bites us. I've been bitten a few times, but I can survive and recover. We ought not do anything that shackles us in the way that this very well could. So I'm going to vote against it. And unless I hear something different from those things that have been said up to now, this is the only time I will speak on it.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. There's no further discussion. The question before the body is the
